MSO (Manufacturers Declaration on whether and MCO (Manufacturers Certificate of Origin) are often used interchangeably. MCO is really the modern and universally accepted version of mso, but the term MSO still applies generically to both. McO (also known as MSO) serves as the manufacturer's title – and birth certificate – for a vehicle, a component (such as a frame or engine) or another product. The form describes the item in terms of aspects and characteristics as well as identifying marks - USDOT VIN number and/or serial number. In addition, MCO (transfers Certificate of Origin - is the fancy, high standard, modern, certificate version of the old plain-jane MSO. Modern MCOs are often referred to as 50-State MCO because they are accepted everywhere as the modern version of the MSO. In fact, the 50-State MCO is actually the worldwide MCO as defined by the International Standards Organization in cooperation with the AAMVA design team. . MCO is designated to have very high standards for paper, ink and other safety devices that have generally been designated by AAMVA (American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators) representing the automotive industry and DMVs. etc Some DMVs and other agencies can accept an old plain paper MSO for some things - like motorcycle frames, engines, trailers, etc - but again, maybe they won't accept them. The official 50-state MCOs forms accepted by all DMVs. Paper: Sensitized safety paper - paper that is reactive to chemicals commonly used to modify documents Non-optical brightener paper - paper without added optical lys elements that will not fluoride under ultraviolet light.
